Challenges	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Lack of health consciousness among the students.</li> <li>• Less attention towards extracurricular activities.</li> <li>• Least attention towards writing skills due to over use of mobiles and computer related techniques.</li> <li>• Lack of students` interest in sports events.</li> <li>• Students are interested only in the job opportunities rather than building their overall personality. ### Students feedback analysis for the year 2016-17

During the academic year the feedback of 224 students has been collected. Information was collected from 67 II semester, 70 IV Semester and 87 VI semester students.

Knowledge base of the teachers: In question No. 1 of our feedback questionnaire students were asked to rate the performance of their teachers in terms of very good, good, satisfactory and poor. Out of 67 studying in II sem, a majority 34 said that the knowledge base of their teacher is very good followed by 28 students who said it is good. For 4 students, it is satisfactory. Among 70 IV sem students, a majority i.e., 40 students rated the knowledge base of their teachers with the response “good” even VI sem students also rated their teachers in the same way. Among all responses only insignificant number of students rated their teachers with the response “poor”. It is very clear that in our college majority of teachers are qualified in many respects. Majority of teachers have either Ph.D or M.Phil degrees. Some new entrants have SLET or NET. Hence, naturally knowledge base of the teachers is good and very good.

Communication skills of teachers in terms of articulation and comprehensibility: Communication skill is essential pre-requisite quality to make transition into teaching profession. Now majority of students wish to study Degree in native language that is Kannada, and only a few who are born and brought up in urban areas are studying in English medium. Out of 67 II Sem students, a majority of students that is 33 stated that the communication skills of their teachers is good. Even IV sem students also expressed the same feeling. However a majority 40 out of 87 told that the communication skill of their teachers is “very good”. It is quite clear that ability to judge the performance of their teachers increases with student’s progression in educational system.

Sincerity and commitment of teachers: Sincerity and commitment to their job or profession is a noble quality of a good teacher. In this survey efforts have been made to assess the student’s perception regarding the sincerity and commitment of their teachers. Out of 224 students spread across all semesters, 44.64 % and 36.16 % have rated their teachers with the response very good and good respectively. It is followed by 11.6 % of students who said that sincerity and commitment of their teachers is satisfactory to them. Only 4 % of the students said “it is poor”.

Ability of teachers in generating interest among students while teaching the subject: An effort has been made to assess the capacity of teachers in generating the interest among the students. 36.60 % and 37.5 % of 224 students rated their teachers with the response “very good and good” respectively while 16.96 % said it is satisfactory. However, 6.25% (14) of the total students are not happy about the ability of teachers in generating interest among the students. Though this rating is insignificant considering the Universal size of 224, an educational institution should strive hard to bring down this figure. In our college, after the survey is over, the concerned teachers are communicated about the responses of the students. They are motivated to generate interest among the students while teaching the subject. There are many ways to make the teaching attractive. Using the ICT, preparing the lesson plans, interrelating the teaching with the examination system, promoting “learners centric” teaching method one can generate a lot of interest among the students.

Ability of teachers in integrating their teaching with other social issues to provide broader perspective: With the passage of time, the social surrounding goes on changing. Many social issues emerge out of these changes and alterations in social milieu. 37.5 %, 41.7% of total 224 students rated their teachers with the responses “very good and good”. 14.73 % said it is satisfactory. Marginal number of students 5.35 (12) rated their teachers with the response “poor.” Some of the experienced teachers having decades of experience and who have undergone refresher and orientation courses have this ability. Some of the newly appointed teachers may not have this ability. As and when they become experienced, they get this ability. This ability comes with the progression in job or profession.

Ability to integrate the course content with other disciplines: In social sciences namely sociology, political science, economics, social work, mass communication and journalism etc., there is a lot of opportunity to integrate course content with other disciplines. In some disciplines there is a little scope to integrate course content with other disciplines. Hence, the ability to integrate course content with other disciplines is decided by the tact and intelligence of teachers and with the disciplines itself. 27.67 %, 48.21% and 16.07 % of total 224 students rated the performance of teachers with the responses “very good, good and satisfactory”. Only 5.80 % (13) students are not happy with the ability of their teachers in integrating the course content with other disciplines.

Accessibility and availability of teachers to the students: Availability of teachers to students has its own importance in educational institutions. This availability helps the students to clarify their doubts. About their career planning they get clear picture. Hence, a question has been asked to students about this aspect. In our survey it was found that 29.91 %, 44.64 and 17.85% of 224 students rated their teachers with the responses “very good, good and satisfactory. However 6.69 % (15) students give the rating “poor”. They are not happy with the availability of their teachers. Our college has a good number of teachers who are working as active research guides. Some teachers are engaged in minor and major research projects. It is because of academic engagements some teachers are not able to give sufficient time to their students. Teachers need to be enlightened in this respect.

Ability to clarify the doubts and confusion of students: 39.28%, 41.96 % and 10.71 % of the total 224 students rated their teachers with the response “very good, good and satisfactory” respectively. Only 2.67 % (6) said that their teachers are not competent enough to clarify the doubts and confusion. The teaching community in our college is qualified in many respects. Majority have this ability.

Overall rating: Out of 224 students 40.62 % and 48.21 rated their teachers with the response “very good and good” while 7.58% students with the response “satisfactory”. Only 3.12 % rated poor.

In our college, soon after the feedback process is over the results will be handed over to the IQAC office. The coordinator calls the concerned teachers and communicates the student’s feedback to them. Many teachers looking at the feedback have improved their performance.
